1. Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The intervention group (n = 20) participated in a supervised walking program, while the control group (n = 20) remained sedentary. The walking program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The program was designed to be low-intensity, with a heart rate target of 110-130 beats per minute. The study was conducted over a 12-week period. The primary outcome was the change in physical health, measured by the 6-minute walk test (6MWT) and the 400-meter walk test (400MWT). The secondary outcome was the change in psychological health, measured by the Beck Depression Inventory (BDI) and the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory (STAI). The results showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on physical health, with the intervention group showing a significant increase in 6MWT and 400MWT scores compared to the control group. There was no significant difference in psychological health between the two groups. The study suggests that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve physical health in sedentary, middle-aged women.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and dark smudges, particularly along the left edge, which may be due to the binding or handling over time. The right edge of the page is slightly irregular.
